Effects of Eyestrain

A few of the many symptoms of eyestrain are dry, itchy, or inflamed eyes, pain in eyeballs, eyes tire easily, dizziness, headache, sick-headache, made worse by sleeping, riding on cars—cross eyes etc., etc.; and by its constant drain upon the nervous system eyestrain is one of the great disturbers of good health. The cause of eyestrain is an imperfectly developed eyeball and the only way to stop it is by the constant wear of properly fitted glasses. My business is fitting glasses to correct the full defect and stop all eyestrain. My new date at Dr. Merrill's office is Monday, Feb. 15.

"Watson", said the great detective as he leaned back in his chair with a long sigh of satisfaction, "did it ever occur to you that this world is a very interesting place? For example: It is interesting to note that you have been at King's." "But my dear fellow how do you?" "Easy, Watson, easy a slight discoloration of your lips tells me you have been eating chocolates, while there is just visible, upon a paper bag protruding from your coat pocket, the eleventh letter of the alphabet. The deduction is simple."

Campbell Champions

The Campbell basket-ball team completed the schedule Saturday night by which they made themselves champions of the I. A. U. and of the High Schools of Santa Clara County, having defeated Mountain View, Los Gatos, Santa Clara, San Jose and Morgan Hill.

The boys were accompanied by an auto truck load of rooters to Morgan Hill where they played that High School team. The first half ended with a score of 24-12, Campbell doing good team work, and making several unusual plays. Second half brot the scores up to 48-15.

The line-up was; forwards, Righter, Kennedy (1st half), Bryant (2nd half); Centef, Fablinger; guards, Bydekarken, L. Lancaster, Feathers (1st half), H. Lancaster, (2nd half).

Great interest is centering around the game Friday night which the team will play at San Mateo to decide the championship of Peninsular Athletic League. If they can win that there are still other laurels to win. Go into it from the first second of play and never let up—boys. Campbell is proud of your present success.

New Gymnasium Going

The boys gymnasium department of the Congregational Sunday-school was organized Monday night. The following officers were chosen, Chas. Hancock, Captain; Frank Mendel, Treasurer; Edward Vandergon, Secretary. The officers, with the pastor, and A. B. Townsend of the trustees, form the governing board. A few simple rules were adopted.

1. A fee of five cents a week.
 2. Members must be attendants at Sunday-school at least 50 per cent of the time.
 3. Soft soled shoes must be worn.
 4. No rough stuff or tooling permitted.
- Meetings with the instructor will be on Monday nights, and the boys will practice once a week by themselves. The work at first will include dumbbells parallel bars and mat work.

Campbell Day at San Jose Luncheon

The weekly luncheon of the San Jose Chamber of Commerce was held at hotel St. James Tuesday with members of the Campbell Improvement Club as guests. President W. L. Atkinson of the San Jose Chamber addressed those assembled, extending Campbell the hearty co-operation of the San Jose organization and stating that a place was reserved on the board of directors for a delegate from Campbell. He urged the alliance of the various local interests of the county to the end that Exposition visitors be shown about the county and extended a hearty welcome.

B. O. Curry, president of the Campbell Improvement Club, being then introduced by Mr. Atkinson, expressed his appreciation of the courtesies extended him and the Campbell Club. He spoke of the plans and working committees for the coming year, stating that the spirit of 1915 had aroused the community to the great opportunities afforded this year and then necessity of action. Campbell and San Jose are growing toward each other and their interests should become more and more identical. Let us work together.

C. H. Whitman spoke on the necessity of every city having an ideal and the union of efforts toward that ideal as progress could only be made in that way. Team-work and co-operation is the slogan which will bring communities to a better understanding and to the accomplishment of greater things.

He complimented San Jose boosters in their untiring efforts in helping each community of the county.

Roy G. Archibald was introduced and extended a most hearty invitation to the chamber and citizens of San Jose to attend the Old Settlers' Day celebration at Campbell on Feb. 22. The spirit of progress is prevalent thruout the Campbell district and many of the ranchers are taking an active part in the work.

The guests from Campbell at the luncheon were: Messrs. B. O. Curry, R. G. Archibald, C. H. Whitman, R. H. Hyde, Harry C. Smith and G. S. Robson.

Home and School Club

The meeting of the Home and School Club Tuesday was very well attended in view of the downpour. Roll call resulted in the picture going to Miss Sawyer's room for February.

Miss Farley's room provided the entertainment features, two class songs and a language story told by Edith Billiou.

A great deal of interest was manifested in the subject for discussion, "A New School House and Bonds." Mrs. Page opened the subject with an explanation of some of the features which the new building should contain, and exhibited photos and blue prints of the new Sunnyvale school, which school authorities generally pronounce quite ideal in every respect. She made it very clear that the Board has no set plan but is trying to obtain all information possible on the subject. She also showed photos of other "open-air" school rooms, and gave some figures for the erection of such buildings.

Prof. Kammerer had the Bond topic, and gave the amount of tax per hundred dollars based on our present assessed valuation, that would result each year from $25,000 bonds, issued for fifteen years, selling at 5 1/2 per cent, and also at 5 per cent. The amount of additional tax which the average tax payer would have each year is very small in comparison with the returns and the increase in the value of property resulting from a modern, up-to-date school building.

Congregational Church

"The Friendly Church just around the Corner."

General theme leading up to Easter "The Builders of the Cross." From the Cross of the Christ there issues a penetrating power. Those who touched this tragedy of the world did so only to have their characters discovered: the secret of their soul shown. The things which gave shape to their conduct were unveiled.

Next Sunday morning the subject is: "Judas. The Infamous," the man after whom no one names his child. Talk to the boys and girls on "Shipping the Cable."

Next Sunday is "Christian Endeavor Day." The local society is planning big things. The County C. E. Officers will be out in a body and speak at both C. E. meeting and the 7:30 service. Installation of the C. E. officers at the public meeting at 7:30. Special music by local and San Jose talent.

If you have no church home, Come, we can do you good. If you want to help, Come, you can do us good. A cordial welcome to all.

SOMETHING for the LITTLE ONES

CHRISTMAS TREE FOR BIRDS

Object of Delight to Little Folks Decorated With Gifts of Food for Members of Feathered Tribe.

Five members of a second reader class in a South Dakota rural school celebrated the first Christmas of the Liberty Bell Bird club of the Farm Journal, Philadelphia, by having a real Christmas tree for the birds near their schoolhouse.

The cedar tree which had been the center of their own jolly Christmas festival was taken out of the schoolhouse by an older pupil while the little folks made Christmas baskets to hang on the tree. After this, whenever they ate their dinners, the children carefully placed all the crumbs left in small baskets, which were then hung on the birds' Christmas tree, where the feathered guests eagerly gathered to enjoy their feast.

This year the Christmas problem of how to remain a sincere and cheerful giver at this season of greatest demands is to be solved by many members of the Farm Journal Liberty Bell Bird club in a way to eliminate much useless and unappreciated giving.

The Christmas tree which has delighted the little folks in the home or schoolhouse will not, as heretofore, be thrown on the trash heap after it has been stripped of its glittering baubles. After it has been carefully set up out of doors in a safe and sheltered spot the little hands which reached out so eagerly for its gifts will now place others upon it—garlands of bright berries, sheaves of golden grain, baskets of suet and bread crumbs—for the little feathered folks. A vessel of water, free of ice, will be placed near by for the bright-eyed visitors to drink or bathe in.

Where there is a suitable tree standing near the home or school it can easily be converted into a Christmas tree for the birds by fastening gifts of food to its branches.

Christmas must ever remain the day for the child, but instead of making the little one selfish with a surfeit of costly toys, how much better to train it to look upon this holiday as the special season to give succor and protection to the helpless. At this time every child old enough to understand its teachings should be enrolled as a member of the Liberty Bell Bird club by signing the following pledge:

"I desire to become a member of the Liberty Bell Bird Club of the Farm Journal, and I promise to study and protect all song and insectivorous birds and do what I can for the club."

There is no cost to any child in joining the club nor after he belongs. The badge button of the club will be sent free to each one who signs the pledge and sends it in to the club.

PRESENT FOR LITTLE GIRLS

Make Doll's Blanket for Your Sister or Friend—Something to Keep Little Misses Busy.

How would you like to make a doll's blanket for your little sister, or for a present to any little girl? This is the way. You will need red and white wool and a pair of knitting needles. Cast on 42 stitches, knit ten rows plain, knitting with the white wool. Join the red and knit four rows, then with white knit four rows, four rows red, four rows white, four rows red again. Now knit the center of the blanket as long as required, and finish by knitting colored wool to match the commencement. For the border one double crochet into the blanket, using the red wool, one treble into the next stitch but one of blanket, three chain, one treble into the same place, three chain, one treble into the same place, three chain, one treble into the same place, three chain, miss two stitches, and repeat from the beginning. Repeat this little edge all round, at the corners put six trebles with three chain between.

THROUGH the CILICIAN GATES

THE CILICIAN GATES, FROM THE SOUTH

WE felt a tingle of expectancy from the moment our Turkish wagon started to trundle over the series of mud holes and hillocks which pass for streets in Tarsus. For we were to go right through that most famous pass in history, the Cilician gates, over the crest of the Taurus mountains, on to the high plateau of eastern Asia Minor, writes Basil Mathews in the Quiver.

Alexander the Great poured his hosts onto the plain of Cilicia and into Syria through this narrow, profound gorge, which could be barred by the single gate of an ordinary castle. Cyrus and his 10,000 Greeks plunged from the great road on the Anatolian plateau which lies beyond the snow ridge of Taurus down on to these plains. Later the Roman legions thundered down this road to Tarsus. This, too, is the gorge into whose shadow Paul passed, to come out on the shining tableland of Anatolia, where Iconium and Derbe and Lystra, with Pisidian Antioch, waited for his word. Through these "Gates" also, Frederick Barbarossa poured his hosts to join Richard the Lion-heart at Acre.

The araba or Turkish wagon (which was to be our home for the next two days) is a seatless spring carriage, covered from end to end with a hood borne by eight supports. From the hood hang curtains which can be rolled up in fine weather and dropped to keep out rain and wind. You lay your bedding on the floor of the wagon, your steamer rugs on the bedding, your traveling cases at the back to lean against; and in this oriental repose look out on the scenery—or sleep.

Our wiry, slight horses pegged on, breaking into a trot on the occasions when the road really was a road. Their bridles sparkled with blue beads, which are most powerful in averting the evil eye. The araba-i (wagon-man) was a stoutly built young fellow, who drove with one leg curled up under him, and made slow, large gestures when he spoke, with a rare mixture of unconscious dignity and oriental leisure.

Across the Plain.

For an hour or more we drove across the plain, the arched hood of the wagon framing the huge white bulwark of the Taurus. The range lifted itself as though to bar the way. The great, brown, comfortable Cilician plain, fertile with the deposit of a thousand centuries from the mountains, was broken here and again by the uprising of the sharp conical mass of some hill—like that of the Seven Sleepers with its cave. Every here and there sprays of anemones (of every tint from palest heliotrope to deep purple) were scattered among crocuses whose white and yellow heads broke almost stalkless—through the earth.

We took a backward look at the great plain, flooded with afternoon light, caught the distant glint of the sea over Mersina, and drove on northward. A short, precipitous, forbidding ravine of brownish-gray scarred rock, so sheer and steep that it looked as though some angry god had hewn it open with an ax, was the one striking break in the normal gradual rise of the road, up and on, twisting and receding, but always finally moving north.

Swinging round a rocky corner, we made a narrow plain—a miniature plateau of the hills, where, behind a khan, the camels were grouped in brown circles, heads down as though settling into a Rugby ("scrum"), but actually just feeding from a sackful of fodder thrown down.

Then we turned sharply into the gateway of Yenikhan (New Khan). The adjective "new" sounded good to travelers who had been told with cheerful iteration of the vermin-haunted dirtiness of the old khans. It had all the primitive antiquity of appearance that the most enthusiastic hunter for the real eastern life could desire.

Up the Pass.

By the time the next morning was fully fledged our wagon was creeping once more up the pass. A new note of wild grandeur began to sound in the ravines. The road now clung to the almost precipitous sides of the gray rock, which lifted itself in jagged, swift leaps a thousand feet above us, while beneath, the icy, tumbling stream filled the whole valley with the sound of running waters. Some peaks were bare, with the stark, unclothed grimness of mountains of the moon; others were covered even to the dizzy peaks with pines which clung to the rock with tenacious roots. Ancient hollow sycamores, as gray as the rocks in which they were rooted, thrust their gnarled trunks over the stream.

Contrasted with the valleys and plain behind us, it was as though we had swept from the alluring harmonies of a Beethoven symphony into the wild and crashing discords of a Wagner overture—with all the stirring blare and appeal of brass and string and wood. Yet through it all, like a strange haunting theme from a folk-song as old as men, strode the tinkling strings of camels, sounding bells that varied from the tiny neck-bells in the high trebles to the bartone of the long bronze bells that swung from their sides.

Precipitous bluffs, their gray and white thrown up defiantly against the blue of the sky, gave a strange feeling of castles built by giants to defend this eerie pass against armies of jinn. At last it looked as though the end had come. The gray bulwark was hurled in front of us, an unbroken, impenetrable, unscalable mass. Suddenly a thin edge of light appeared; there, cloven in the rock, was a passage—narrow and between sheer precipices, with sharp-edged summits.

The Split Rock.

All the thunderbolts of Olympus must have riven the rock that the stream of water and of humanity might pour through it. In the world there are few places suggesting so wonderfully the power of the simple physical facts of hill and mountain and plain to control history. A split rock, through which a loaded camel could barely pass (till Ibrahim Pasha blasted away the rock to give passage for his artillery), has deflected the flow of the contest and contact of East and West in history. And, as scenery, the "Gates" are the crashing climax of the Taurus overture.

Passing out of their shadow, we came out into open valleys running north and northwest, on a rise so gradual that, when the actual watershed was reached, it could barely be discerned. And, curiously enough, the waters that flow north and south from this point do not reach sea distant from one another, each finally reaching the Mediterranean.

Our road ran north and west, dropping now gradually, now steeply—till, passing the last string of tired camels as the sun set ahead of us, we reached the old khan at Bozanti. Ahead lay the caravan road, along which Greek and Roman and Crusader have come. They have come, but they have passed—and the eternal East remains. The Oriental, swinging his legs astride his tiny donkey and leading his line of laden camels, holds the road, just as he held it when Paul, in his company, came along these valleys to that "shining tableland" where Derbe, Lystra, Iconium and Antioch were to be immortalized by his passing.

HER PECULIAR RING

What Happened When Robina's Sister Wore Her Engagement Band.

By MOLLY M'MASTER.

Bradley strolled along the darkened street of London finding a certain pleasure in the mystery surrounding all things. He compared the dimly lit thoroughfare with the glare of his native city, and found the enforced darkness of London at least more sensational than Broadway under its myriad lights.

However, Bradley realized that he would soon again be back in New York, and that it was a privilege to have seen London during war times and shrouded in its cautious garments of shadows. The city certainly held many interests and Bradley regretted that he had not more time at his disposal that he might prolong his stay.

He drew out his cigar lighter preparatory to enjoying a few puffs of smoke before entering his lodgings on Holland Park avenue. Bradley had scarcely raised his light to his pipe when a voice arrested him—an hysterical voice that came from the complete gloom of the roadway.

"Oh, do please let me have that light for a moment," the girl pleaded quickly. "I have been groveling in the pitch darkness for my ring. I dropped it from my bag and don't dare to leave the spot for fear of not finding it again." Her tone was high-pitched and Bradley knew that she was frightfully upset and on the verge of tears. He knew, also, that she exhaled a delightful perfume, perhaps from her soft furs, but he could get no glimpse of her face.

"We'll find the ring in a minute," he told her with a laugh in his voice. "You just stand still where you are, so I will know where to look." He bent down and with his small benzine lighter managed to throw a tiny wedge of illumination across the path.

The stone walk was icy cold to the touch as he ran his hand over it, and it was some minutes before the diminutive searchlight probed the right shadows and flared over the lost ring.

A little cry of delight left the girl's lips. The ring was an exquisite bow-knot of aquamarines and diamonds. That was all Bradley could see before the benzine lighter fluttered out. "It has done its duty anyway," he said as he handed the girl her treasure and for a fleeting second touched the cool of her slim fingers.

"But you cannot light your pipe now," she said with sweet apology in her voice. "I'm so sorry."

"Plenty of matches," said Bradley, and would have drawn out his box save that the girl held out her hand to him by way of thanks.

"I would have had to sit here until daylight had you not come along," she told him. "I thank you very much for helping me."

She slipped away into the darkness and Bradley was left with only the realization that her hand was slim and soft, and that it had sent a peculiarly pleasant wave of emotion over him.

"By Jove—I wish I would have got a glimpse of her face. She may be goggle-eyed and squinty for all I know." He managed a light for his pipe while he pondered over the girl and her possible identity. "Sounded a bit Yankee," he decided, and felt more hopeful that she would again be flung across his path since he, too, hailed from the land of American Beauties.

"I will have to find the ring again," he muttered, "and flash my small searchlight on her face." Bradley hoped the girl was not engaged, but he felt reasonably sure that she would not have been practically in hysterics over the loss of any but a betrothal ring.

However, the interests of business and the return trip to New York dispelled all memories of mysterious nights of darkness and the entrance of the girl into his horizon. She might have been a myth springing from darkened London, and Bradley had soon forgotten the incident.

He had not been home three weeks before the scene was flung vividly across his brain. Bradley was attending an engagement party at the home of one of his friends when he suddenly caught sight of the ring he had picked up for the girl in London. At least Bradley supposed it to be the ring, and in a second he was at the side of the girl who wore it. He was in no way attracted to the girl, and her hair was not golden nor were her eyes violet—two essentials of feminine beauty in Bradley's eyes.

He took out his small benzine cigar lighter and flashed it on the girl's face who was wearing the ring. After that he waited for the start of surprise from her.

Robina Bassingford looked askance at Bradley.

"I am not a battleship on the coast," she said with a laugh, "nor am I the enemy's encampment, so why turn the searchlight on me?" "Have you ever been in London?" Bradley asked her.

"Never—we are going on our honeymoon though," Robina blushed prettily as she said it.

Bradley sighed. Perhaps he was glad that Robina Bassingford was not the girl whose hand had thrilled him in the dark of London. It was strange that there were two rings of so peculiarly attractive design, and Bradley wondered if he would ever see the other one again.

Suddenly, as he sat at the dinner table, a most familiar scent was wafted to him. He drew in a deep breath and again felt himself plunged into the darkness and a girl whose furs exhaled just such an odor stood beside him. More than ever was he inclined to disbelieve Robina. The ring and the scent both pointed her out as that girl of shadows.

He did not press the subject, however, but returned to the dainty girl who was sitting at his right side. Bradley had been failing a ready victim of June McCree's violet eyes and soft smile when the ring incident had claimed his attention. Now, as he turned back to her he seemed to feel that she was going to prove the one and only girl for him.

Later, when they were dancing a slow waltz, Bradley again became conscious that the subtle odor of the myth girl was being wafted to him from June's golden hair.

"Have you ever been in London?" he asked quickly, his heart beating more rapidly than it had when he had put the same question to Robina.

"Yes," June answered, starting out of her rather pleasant sense of rhythm. She felt her partner draw a long deep breath as if of contentment, and if she felt especially happy Bradley did not for the moment know it.

"Have you ever seen a diminutive searchlight seeking to find a lost ring on the London sidewalk? And have your furs ever sent forth a perfume so pungent as to linger in a man's sense for weeks and weeks? Tell me—have you done all these mysterious things?" Bradley had stopped dancing, and June looked straight into his eyes with a light in her own that quite made his head reel.

She laughed softly.

"How strange!" she said, because for the moment no other words sprang to her lips. June had pondered many hours over the personality of the man whose hand she had clasped in London, and now that she had actually found him it seemed suddenly a most romantic situation, and her heart fluttered against her corsage of pink roses. She hoped Bradley would not notice her foolish emotion.

"But the ring—it is not yours—and you are not engaged?" he half demanded.

"It is not mine. I bought it while in London for my brother to give to Robina, and I wore it rather than worry lest it be stolen when not on my finger. Brother does not know about my losing it," she added with a blush. "He thinks me careless enough now. You won't tell him, will you?" June's slim fingers went out in impulsive pleading and rested on Bradley's arm.

Bradley drew a deep breath. The same thrill shot up his arm that her touch had given him once before. He stood looking happily down into her violet eyes. After a moment he spoke.

"I promise," he said slowly, "so long as you let me tell you something—within a week."

June blushed hotly. "You only met me tonight," she parried.

"Girl! I met you weeks and weeks ago—in the shadows of London. Promise me," he said softly.

"I hate to be considered careless," hesitated June.

"How can I wait a whole week?" murmured Bradley.

"I wouldn't do anything I didn't want to," laughed June. (Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Famous Old Turnpike.

Among the many turnpikes projected in connection with Pittsburgh 100 and more years ago, one crowding on another, was that of one between Pittsburgh and Greensburg. The initiation of this was at a meeting held December 4, 1813, at the house of John McMaster, to consider the question of applying to the legislature for a charter to incorporate a company to build this road. John Wilkins was made chairman of the meeting and Ephraim Pentland secretary. A committee consisting of Dunning McNair, William Steele, John Irwin, William McCandless and Ephraim Pentland was appointed to confer with a similar committee from Westmoreland county. This was accomplished a few days later and steps taken to secure action by the legislature, and the result was the formation of a company and the beginning of operations. At the same time another commission decided to ask for proposals in January, 1814, for the construction of the "Two-Mile Run Turnpike," the road designed to be "60 feet wide, pavement 22 feet wide and two feet deep, the latter six inches to be river gravel, and on each side was to be sufficient space for a summer road."

Pigeon Flying in Belgium.

Pigeon flying is forbidden in this country just now, but it is doubtful if even the horrors of war will keep the Belgians from what is their nearest approach to a national sport. It has been said of the Belgian workman that he divides his wages into three parts, one for his family, one for himself and one for his carrier pigeons. The extent to which the sport is practiced may be gathered from the fact that the railways reap 3,000,000 francs a year from the carriage of the baskets in which pigeons are conveyed to and from the race meetings. Large prizes are offered by various clubs, and at a great race a few years since 100,000 birds competed.

RAP AT CHERISHED BELIEFS

Cleopatra Not as Beautiful as Picture and Nero Didn't Fiddle While Rome Was Burning.

"Cleopatra was not as beautiful as she is said to have been," remarked the iconoclastic man.

"There you go!" exclaimed the old-fashioned orator, "trying to upset other people's cherished beliefs! Maybe Nero didn't fiddle while Rome was burning?"

"I don't believe he did." "I refuse to have anything further to do with you, sir. The beauty of Cleopatra and the perfidy of Nero have served me as an illustration in hundreds of speeches. Where would I be if either one of these so-called delusions were swept from the minds of the common people?"

"I don't believe I'll take that gown, after all."

"Why not?"

"It feels too comfortable on me to be stylish."

"Well, she's brought her music."—Musical America.

Peace Also Began at Home.

"Is it true," asked the society reporter, "that you and several other neighbors have contributed to a fund to send Mr. Brown's daughter abroad to finish her education?" "Absolutely," replied the gentleman addressed; "as president of our local peace society I headed the list."

Relieved.

"Doppelday doesn't seem like the same fellow since Miss Oldun refused him."

"You mean he's so depressed?"

"No. He goes about with the air of a man who has done his duty and has nothing whatever to reproach himself for."

Assumption of Rank.

"Dearest," said the sentimental bridegroom after the wedding ceremony, "do you think that I'll prove to be a satisfactory mate?"

"Oh, I guess you'll do all right," responded the practical bride; "and now look me over and tell me what you think of your captain."

Parental Love.

Mrs. Brown (a visitor)—What a disagreeable neighbor you have next door!

Mrs. White—Yes; but I don't condemn the man. He is disagreeable for the sake of his boys. He is trying to exasperate me so I'll put up a spite fence that they can use for a backstop.—Puck.

Between Women.

"What do you think of the men wearing feathers in their hats?"

"Bad sign," declared the other lady. "The feathers are small now, I know, but they may increase in size, and few families can afford to buy ostrich plumes for two."

To Be Pitied.

Poor Mrs. de Reegur is broken-hearted. They can't send her any more Paris gowns. That suit she's wearing was made here in town.

"What a pity! I never saw her looking so well."

Mechanical Catarrh.

Jones (telephoning)—I wish you'd send a man up here to fix that phonograph you sold me. It's singing through its nose.

Most Skin Trouble Readily Overcome

The Active Principle of a Famous Remedy Works Wonders.

Many people have marveled the way S. S. S. overcomes skin troubles. The explanation is the fact that S. S. S. works in the blood and the blood is really a most intricate and extraordinary mass of arteries and veins.

When you come to realize that the skin and the flesh beneath are composed of a network of tiny blood vessels you solve the mystery.

There are wonderful medicinal properties in S. S. S. that follow the course of the blood streams just as naturally as the most nourishing food elements. It is really a remarkable remedy. It contains one ingredient, the active purpose of which is to stimulate the tissues to the healthy selection of its own essential nutriment. And the medicinal elements of this matchless blood purifier are just as essential to well-balanced health as the nutritious elements of the meats, grains, fats and sugars of our daily food.

Not one drop of mineral or drugs is used in its preparation. Ask for S. S. S. and just insist upon having it. And if you desire skillful advice and counsel upon any matter concerning the blood and skin, write to the Medical Department, The Swift Specific Co., 529 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Do not allow some searful clerk's element over something "just as good" as S. S. S. to fool you with the same old mineral drugs. Beware of all substitutes. Insist upon S. S. S.

BAND SAVED THE SMALL BOY

Whether the Bull Was Astonished or Disgusted It Is, of Course, Impossible to Say.

"The village had a new brass band," said an urbanite just in from a stay in an ultra rural part of an eastern state. "The new band played its first piece one day, considerably going some distance out of the village to do it. That delicate consideration doubtless saved the life of a small boy, but it killed Farmer Stauffer's valuable Jersey bull."

"At the time the band went out to play its first tune the bull was feeding contentedly in its pasture, which was near the spot chosen by the band for venturing on its initial burst of tune. While the band was getting its collective lips ready to compel that burst from its horns the small boy who figured in the episode was taking a short cut through the pasture to get to the band."

"The bull took note of the small boy's presence and proceeded at once to hasten his trip across the lot. The boy did not delay his hastening. The band had not seen the procession moving through the meadow, although the bull was mouthing his displeasure lustily as he ran and the small boy was lifting up his voice in audible and penetrating tones, so absorbed was that band in thought of what it was on the verge of lifting up itself."

"The bull was within three jumps of the speeding small boy when the band had at last got ready to play its tune. The band began to play. At the first burst from the assembled horns the bull stopped short, threw up his head and sniffed the air. The band blared again. The bull turned and rushed wildly toward a nearby stone wall that divided the lot from another lot. The band threw its soul once more into its horns and the bull sprang over the wall. He came down on his head on the other side. The small boy, though, did not stop in his flight, and the last seen of him was a streak of dust in the road leading to the village. The bull's neck was broken. He was dead."

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" Can't Harm Tender Little Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad, has sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

Strange Shower From Sky.

A remarkable fall from the heavens of large quantities of what is described as metallic floss took place at Healdsburg, Cal. The shower, which began between 7 and 8 a. m., and reached its maximum about ten o'clock, was seen by all the inhabitants of the town.

According to an eyewitness, the material appeared high in the heavens, in a clear sky, as a mass of stars, lustrous metallic sheets and silvery ropes. It reached the earth in various shapes and sizes, ranging from minute particles to sheets 20 feet square. It fell in such quantities that long ropes and masses of it hung from the telephone and telegraph wires.

When the substance reached the warm earth it began at once to contract into fibrous masses, resembling flossy asbestos, though tests proved that it was not that material. Most of it soon disappeared, though samples were saved and sent to Director Campbell of the Lick observatory and to Prof. Tito Alippi, director of the observatory at Urbino, Italy.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Speechless.

Blondine—Hear about Gerty Giddig?

Brunetta—What about her?

"Knocked speechless by a street car."

"But I just passed her a few moments ago and she spoke to me."

"I know, but she was on her way to a meeting to make an address, and when the car hit her she lost her manuscript."

WHY GRIP IS DANGEROUS.

It requires a good tonic laxative to keep the body of the patient as strong as possible to counteract the effect of the poisons created by the grip bacillus. An expectorant tonic with some laxative qualities is the safest remedy. Such is Peruna.

Mrs. Gentry Gates, 8219 First Ave., East Lake, Ala., writes: "I had a bad case of grip. I tried Peruna and it cured me. I can safely say it is a fine medicine."

Mr. George E. Law, 13 1/2 N. Franklin St., Brazil, Ind., writes: "I am satisfied that Peruna is a wonderful remedy for grip, and I do most heartily endorse and recommend it."

Twins.

"I don't like to see warring armies call too persistently on Providence. It savors of arrogance and self-righteousness. Providence may take revenge."

The speaker was Bishop Lincoln L. Miles of Duluth. He went on: "There was once a young couple that expected a visit from the stork. The husband was anxious that the stork bring a girl; the wife was anxious for a boy. Being very religious both besought Providence morning noon and night to grant his or her desire."

"And Providence heard. Providence granted both prayers."

The Latest Amusement.

Down in New Milford, which is in Connecticut, a new form of amusement has been discovered. Of course it may not appeal to all of us—but that is to be expected, you know. Not all of us believe in poker, pugilism or any one of half a dozen other diversions that might be mentioned, do we? The new game which is to put New Milford on the map with Petrograd, Zhenstochowa, Przemysl and the other prominent places, is this: Catch a nice, lively rooster. Place it in a store window alongside a can of corn containing 1,000 or more kernels. Starve the rooster for 24 hours. Then register your guess as to how many kernels it will eat at a meal and up-set the corn. The game is said to be highly diverting to persons participating. It contains an element of cruelty, to be sure. This is held by some to add zest to the game. By others it is said to arouse indignation and disgust. What the rooster thinks of it cannot be recorded, of course. Yes—some of us are easily amused, that's a fact.—Detroit Free Press.

Activities of Women.

Philadelphia has 25 independent woman shoemakers. Linn county, Oregon, has five post-mistresses.

In Switzerland there is one divorce for every 22 marriages; in France one for every 30; in Germany one for every 44; in England one for every 400, and in the United States one in every 12.

Women have no rights among the natives of New Guinea. They are treated as slaves, worked almost to death and savagely beaten when their owners happen to be in a bad humor, which is often. It is their business to cultivate the fields of banana and rice while their lords and masters attend to the fighting and hunting. If a man chooses to murder his wife no one interferes and nothing much seems to be thought of it.

CUSS WORDS WERE COSTLY

Autoist Tells Friend of His Experiences in Jay Town Where Constable Was Not Needed.

"Beware of that jay town ten miles out," said the autoist. "Why so?" inquired his friend. "There was no constable there the last time I passed."

"They don't need a constable. There's a thank-you-ma'am that throws your car into a ditch. Then the justice of the peace comes along and fines you $10 for obstructing the highway and $10 for the use of a team to pull you out. The harness is fixed to break, and that costs $5 more. By that time a man loses his temper. The justice waits until he runs out of breath and then charges him $2 a cuss word."

"Holy smoke—so it cost you a total of $27?"

"A total of what? It cost me just $105, and even at that I think he lost count."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Unwarranted Peril.

"This penitentiary wants reforming!" said the man who was reading the paper.

"Is something shocking going on?" inquired his wife.

"I should say so. Here's a story of a prisoner who was allowed to ride up and down Broadway in an automobile!"

"Horror! It's bad enough to put a man in prison without encouraging him to risk his life."

His Sage Method.

"How is it that young Dr. Pipsis-sawa has succeeded in building up a large practice so quickly?"

"Oh, he tells his men patients that they work their brains far harder than their bodies, and his women patients that for some time they have kept up solely by their wills. Naturally, he cannot help but succeed."—Puck.

And many a good husband hasn't the nerve to be otherwise.

At Ninety Walks Ten Miles a Day.

Fourteen years ago two doctors at Binghamton, N. Y., told William W. Hemingway that he hadn't more than a year to live. Since that time he has attended the funerals of both, and now has passed his ninetyeth birthday.

"I just made up my mind to fool 'em," he says. "I started walking. The first few months I walked nearly two miles a day. Now, unless the weather is bad, I seldom go less than ten miles and have often walked as much as twenty."

Doctors sometimes stop Mr. Hemingway on the street and urge him not to overdo his exercise.

"I don't know when to stop," he confesses. "I get up in the summer usually at four o'clock. Cold weather keeps me in bed half an hour longer."

10 CENT "CASCARETS"

IF BILIOUS OR COSTIVE

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—They Work While You Sleep.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

Less Competition.

"Years ago they used to cheer my picture when it was shown on the screen," said the disappointed statesman.

"Oh, well," replied the friend, "that was before all these moving picture stars came out."

Sick Women Made Well

Reliable evidence is abundant that women are constantly being restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The many testimonial letters that we are continually publishing in the newspapers—hundreds of them—are all genuine, true and unsolicited expressions of heartfelt gratitude for the freedom from suffering that has come to these women solely through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Money could not buy nor any kind of influence obtain such recommendations; you may depend upon it that any testimonial we publish is honest and true—if you have any doubt of this write to the women whose true names and addresses are always given, and learn for yourself.

Read this one from Mrs. Waters:

CAMDEN, N. J.—"I was sick for two years with nervous spells, and my kidneys were affected. I had a doctor all the time and used a galvanic battery, but nothing did me any good. I was not able to go to bed, but spent my time on a couch or in a sleeping-chair, and soon became almost a skeleton. Finally my doctor went away for his health, and my husband heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got me some. In two months I got relief and now I am like a new woman and am at my usual weight. I recommend your medicine to every one and so does my husband."—Mrs. TILLIE WATERS, 530 Mechanic Street, Camden, N. J.

From Hanover, Penn.

HANOVER, PA.—"I was a very weak woman and suffered from bearing down pains and backache. I had been married over four years and had no children. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound proved an excellent remedy for it made me a well woman. After taking a few bottles my pains disappeared, and we now have one of the finest boy babies you ever saw."—Mrs. C. A. RICKRODE, R.F.D., No. 5, Hanover, Pa.

Now answer this question if you can. Why should a woman continue to suffer without first giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial? You know that it has saved many others—why should it fail in your case?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health. Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

The Fair Is On

The San Diego Chamber of Commerce has issued circulars refuting the rumor that the Panama-California Exposition now being held in that city was to be closed this month. The report of closing is false and as attendance during January was very satisfactory, they wished the rumor denied.

So far as the Chinese are concerned, the statement that the San Diego Exposition opened New Year's Eve is not a true one, for, although the fair did open at midnight December 31, the Oriental New Year does not arrive until February 13. The Chinese of California, however, were not daunted by this difference between the two calendars, and on February 13, they will hold an elaborate festival on the grounds of the Exposition. Definite arrangements have not yet been made, but a committee of San Diego Chinese has conferred with the Exposition authorities, and plans for the celebration are now being drawn up. Hundreds of Chinese from all parts of the state are expected to take part in the ceremonies, the unique character of which will draw thousands of occidentals to the Exposition grounds to witness the celebration.

After distributing Christmas gifts to children in the countries now involved in the great European war, the U. S. Jason has been ordered by the navy department to stop at Piraeus, Genoa, Marseilles, Barcelona, and Plymouth to take on exhibits for the San Diego and San Francisco expositions. The Jason will come to the Pacific coast via the Panama Canal as soon as the displays are collected.

An ostrich incubator, capable of hatching forty ostrich eggs in forty days, has been received at the ostrich farm on the grounds of the San Diego Exposition and is now in operation. The incubator, which is eight feet long, is heated by electricity. When the ostrich hatches her own eggs, about fifty per cent. are lost, but it is believed that the incubator will prove more efficient. In a few weeks, the young ostriches will be running about the farm.

Epworth League Course

Members of the Epworth League are being congratulated on the excellence of the first of their three entertainments which was given in the Methodist church Tuesday evening. There was a good audience present, notwithstanding the inclement weather, and many of those present felt that this first number was worth the price of the season ticket. Miss Gibson of San Francisco, Miss Moore and Mrs. Harper of Pacific Grove were the entertainers, and the following program was presented:

Organ—Selected. Miss Carol Moore
Monologue—"Trouble". Miss Carol Gibson
Recitations (a) "Da Mericana Girl"
[b] "A Ducky Lullaby"
[c] "Little Fritz". Miss Gibson

Farm Facts

Agriculture needs all the great men it can get.
In union there is strength and in co-operation there is profit.
The farmer can neither help himself nor be helped by others until he organizes.
The economic distribution of farm products is today the world's greatest problem.

Twenty-third Annual "Old Settlers' Day" Celebration.

Now Being Planned For February 22

Basketball Campbell vs Santa Cruz 2:30

The various committees for the Old Settlers' Day report good progress and we are all looking forward to a splendid celebration.
Dr. W. W. Willard, one of the best orators of Santa Clara County, has been chosen by the committee as speaker of the day.
There are over 300 Iowa people in this county and we expect a large part of them here on Feb. 22nd as they hold their annual meeting here on that day.

Every effort is being put forth to make this "Old Settlers' Celebration" a bigger success than ever.
Invite your friends now to come to Campbell, February 22.
The chairmen of the several committees are given below.
Program Committee: I. W. Snow.
Decorating Committee: Mrs. Meda Waite.
Ushers: Roy Archibald.
Principal Speaker Committee: C. H. Whitman.
Publicity Committee: E. R. Kennedy.
Finance Committee: E. A. Barker.
Hall Committee: W. S. Shelly.
Refreshment Committee: Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Dunning.
Reception Committee: Rev. and Mrs. G. E. Atkinson.

Local and Personal

Improvement Club meets tonight.

I am going to attend.
Mr. Boardman of Boardman Bros., San Francisco was here Saturday on business.

Mrs. L. C. Dick of San Jose spent Thursday afternoon in Campbell, the guest of Mrs. Blaine.

Wm. Coupland has purchased a five-acre tract of F. H. Cutting just north of Campbell on Hamilton avenue.

Bert Vandergon of Maple Lake, Minn., arrived last week for a visit with his uncle, J. J. Vandergon, and family.

Mrs. L. D. Cole arrived home Wednesday after spending most of the winter visiting her relatives at Clarks-ville, W. Va.

Rent day has come. A. F. Bulmore is moving from the Herrington apartments back to the Robertson house south of Blaine's store.

Miss Jessie Gill, a student of the U. of C., who has been the guest of the Gill Brothers and families for two weeks returned to Berkeley yesterday.

If the weather continues favorable, Mrs. Wm. Alexander will return soon from San Francisco where she has been ill for several weeks with pleural pneumonia.

Mrs. A. S. Collins of Pacific Grove arrived Tuesday to spend a week with her daughter, Mrs. Fred Bohman. Mr. Collins is enjoying some fine fishing on Monterey Bay between storms.

The Ysbel family who have been living in Joe Gard's house on North Central Avenue moved Wednesday into the Harding house south of the bank. Mr. Gard's son, Luman, will move into his house.

Remember to reserve the date of Feb. 19. The "Searchlights" are planning a ten-cent social for that date. Some extra fine Stereopticon pictures of the great earthquake. Other features are to be revealed later.

J. J. Bogardus of Hollywood, Cal., last week purchased the twelve-acre ranch on Hamilton avenue formerly owned by Carl Cutting. Mr. Bogardus is here now looking after the improvements of his newly acquired tract.

Wm. Wilson, who was so seriously injured last August in an auto wreck near Bakersfield, was brought here last week to the home of his mother, Mrs. M. J. Wilson. Tuesday his mother and C. B. Miracle accompanied him to San Francisco where he may more rapidly improve, tho the family is much pleased with progress already made.

Do It Now!

The water levee south of Campbell has broken away in places and needs immediate repairing. At the advice of Mr. R. K. Thomas, the supervisors came out Wednesday and looked over the breach, and Mr. Roll stated that if those interested would donate their services for the making of necessary temporary repairs, he would have the work completed later when the water had gone down. This seems a fair proposition and those willing to assist will please see Mr. Thomas today, who has charge of the work. The county will furnish the materials for the repairs.

A New Ford Story

Here is a new Ford story we saw somewhere, but have forgotten just where. A man in California writes to the Ford company and tells them they should feel very much elated for the reason that the Ford is the only car mentioned in the Bible and to prove it cites them to apassage in Isaiah which says: "He went up into Heaven on high" and asks what other car but a Ford could do that?

Methodist Church Notes

The pastor will speak Sunday morning on "Confessing Christ," and there will be an opportunity for uniting with the church. In the evening, we will have the fourth address on "Prison Reform."

Miss Ruth Simpson will lead the League devotional meeting Sunday evening.

The social department of the Epworth League is planning for a social to be held in the lecture room of the church Tuesday evening.

At the close of prayer meeting Wednesday evening, the monthly business meeting of the League will be held.

Brother Charles Thackeray received the congratulations of many friends Thursday on having completed seventy-nine years of life, still being active and as interested as any in the affairs of the church.

Mr. Lloyd spent Monday and Tuesday in the cities about San Francisco Bay.

The Ladies' Aid will give a Violet Tea at Mrs. Rodeck's Tuesday afternoon from two to five o'clock.

Pingree--Waite

A quiet wedding took place in Campbell last Tuesday evening, Feb. 2nd, 1915 when Mr. Edward S. Waite of Oakland was married to Miss Hannah A. Pingree of San Francisco. The Rev. J. S. Hayward performed the ceremony.

Mr. Waite is well known in the community having owned a ranch on the Los Gatos Road and lived here a number of years.

He has a large circle of friends and relatives at this place, who are glad that he has so charming a bride as Miss Pingree of San Francisco.

Their many friends extend to them their hearty congratulations, and best wishes for much joy and happiness.

Fellowship Conference

The meetings held Wednesday at the Congregational church were well attended and were a source of inspiration for the various branches of the church work. The program as outlined below, was carried out and both the Conferences and the evening addresses proved very helpful.

The supper served by the ladies at six o'clock was very appetizing and "good-fellowship" certainly prevailed. The "toasts" which followed contributed to the spirit of brotherhood.

During the evening services Calvin Bohnett played a beautiful violin solo, and Miss Marion Duncan and H. C. Smith sang a duet.

A Sweetly Solemn Thought

How dear to our hearts is the steady subscriber,

Who pays in advance at the birth of each year;

Who lays down the money and does it quite gladly,

And casts 'round the office a halo of cheer.

He never says, "Stop it; I cannot afford it,"

I'm getting more papers than now. I can read."

But always says, "Send it; our people all like it—

In fact, we all think it a help and a need."

How welcome his check when it reaches our sanctum,

How it makes our pulse throb; how it makes our heart dance;

We outwardly thank him; we inwardly bless him—

The steady subscriber who pays in advance.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them.
